

Investigative Reporting on Business and Finance Conference

Sept. 20-21, 2008 (Saturday - Sunday) • Columbia University, New York

The topic of this year's conference, organized by the Lorana Sullivan Foundation and Investigative Reporters and Editors Inc, is "The Investigation of Business and Finance."

Top financial journalists, investigators and experts will lead the sessions. Details of speakers, topics and panels will be added later this week.

For the past six years—2003 through 2008—the Lorana Sullivan Foundation has run a Summer School on investigative journalism at the University of Westminster, London, United Kingdom. Experienced British, American and continental investigators and trainers presented sessions on a number of important aspects of reporting. The foundation supported a previous Investigating Business Seminar in 2005 at Columbia University.
